FOR PRESIDENT,
JOHN C. BRECKINRIDGE, OF KENTUCKY.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
GENERAL JOSEPH LANE,
OF OREGON.

TUESDAY.....OCTOBER 30, 1860.

The importance of the approaching election in Kentucky cannot be overestimated. We are aware that many persons assume that Breckinridge and Lane cannot be elected by the people, and that it is therefore immaterial for whom the vote of Kentucky may be cast, as Breckinridge will, beyond doubt, be one of the three contestants should Lincoln be defeated before the people and the election devolve upon the House of Representatives. Our purpose is briefly to show that it is of the highest moment that this State cast its electoral vote for Breckinridge, as it is within the bounds of probability that he may be elected, with the united Southern vote in his favor, by the vote of New York.

The friends of Mr. Douglas in Kentucky are not struggling for the State. They do not say they hope for success. They are the weaker party here, and now, since the October elections have prostrated the fortunes of their chief, their already reduced numbers are daily diminishing. Why, then, shall a Democrat vote for Douglas in Kentucky. A man must vote intelligibly, understanding the weight of his ballot, and its influence in determining the result. What, then, will be the effect of a large vote in Kentucky for Douglas? If that vote be taken from the Democratic party, it will, of course, reduce Mr. Breckinridge's vote to that extent, and just so much increase Mr. Bell's chances. Is this the object of the Douglas men? Do they desire to defeat Mr. Breckinridge in Kentucky, and thereby give the vote to Mr. Bell? If so, why do they not make the result sure by voting directly for Bell? A bold, open, manly course would command more respect, and be altogether more worthy the freeman, than so covert and indirect a means of accomplishing an end which cannot be concealed. Everybody understands that Breckinridge and Bell are the contending candidates in this State. One or the other is certain to receive its electoral vote. Then let all men select between them. Let every man give his suffrage its full weight. He is a fool who would throw his vote away in such an emergency. He who is a Democrat has no other sensible course than to vote for Breckinridge. He who desires to see the Opposition resume its supremacy in Kentucky is foolish not to vote for Bell. A vote for Gen. Jackson would count as much in Kentucky as a vote for Douglas.

Democrats, are you Organized? Are You Working?

This is important question, says the Nashville Union and American, which concerns every man, nay, every child and the unborn millions of this Republic in the present stage of our country's history. Upon the Titan shoulders of the Democratic masses the destinies of this Republic have rested from the beginning of the present century. They have borne the burden through every trying emergency of our country's career with the lusty strength of matured manhood. They have conducted the Confederacy to the highest pinnacle of prosperity and renown. They have falsified the hopes of the monarchist and the prophecies of the despot, by practically proving that Americans are worthy of the free institutions they enjoy. They have extended the area of our freedom to the Rio Grande on the South and the Pacific on the West. They have upheld the Constitution and vindicated the equal rights of the Union by the election of Lincoln may be forever banished.

Pennsylvania.

The official returns of the late election show a Republican majority of 47,792 in the Congressional races.

The Democratic majorities are stated as follows:

7th District, Cooper.....	143
8th " " Ancon.....	2,282
8th " " McKenty, (unexpired term).....	2,113
12th " Johnson.....	3,112
13th " Baile.....	338
20th " Lazear.....	1,364

The official vote in the first five Districts, all of which were carried by the Republicans, is as follows:

1st, Butler.....	1,383 King.....	1,457
2nd, Morris, 6,262 Broth.....	5,410 Fuller.....	1,760
3rd, Verree, 8,931 Klone.....	8,909 Hamilton.....	339
4th, Kelly, 11,568 Morgan, 10,195 Robinson.....	1,715
5th, Davis, 10,020 Ingerson, 9,734 Rittenhouse, 1,176

It will be seen from these figures that in all of the five districts the Believers had the balance of power between the Republicans and Democrats, and yet threw away their votes in order to secure the election of Abolition Congressmen.

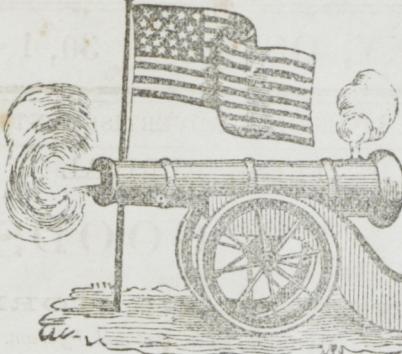

The Douglasties hate Mr. Bright, of Indiana, as the Devil does holy water. Douglas hates Bright, too; and in 1858, he joined the Black Republican Senators Hale, Seward, Wilson, and the balance of them, in trying to turn him out of the Senate, to which he had been elected by the Democracy of Indiana. The object was to give Henry S. Lane, the Black Republican Governor-elect of that State, and McCarty, a Douglastie, the places held by him (Bright) and Fitch. But Douglas and his Black Republican co-laborers failed then to accomplish their purpose; and Douglas and his Know-Nothing coadjutors will fail now to beat down Mr. Bright or to break up the Democratic party.

If you wish to put a man into the presidential chair, who will stand by and defend the rights of Southern men against the aggressions of Northern fanatics, vote for John C. Breckinridge.

Keep it before the people that the Douglasties and Republicans in the Oregon Legislature have fused to elect E. D. BAKER, an Exeter Hall Abolitionist, to the Senate of the United States.

THE BIG MAJORITY IN FLORIDA.—In the late election, little Florida cast the biggest majority for the Breckinridge candidates, that she ever gave over all the forces of combined Bellism and Douglastism.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

COL. HUMPHREY MARSHALL

Will speak on Tuesday, Oct. 30th, at Nicholasville, Jessamine county; on Wednesday, Oct. 31st, in Woodford county, near Versailles; on Friday, Nov. 2d, at Salvisa, in Mercer county; on Saturday, Nov. 3d, at Camdenville, in Anderson county.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Bulletin, writing from this city on Tuesday evening last, thus gives his impression of Mr. Yancey's "manner of speaking."

Mr. Yancey's manner of speaking is also entirely different from that which is commonly attributed to him. It is generally supposed that there is a charm about his delivery which carries an audience away; but his style partakes more of the florid and ornate than the simple and bold; and this orator resembles in kind that which enabled Patrick Henry, or Wm C. Preston, in times past, to hold sway over the multitude. This is a great mistake. His action is not peculiarly graceful, and his voice, not remarkably good, originally is made worse by the loss of a number of his front teeth. His power over the people lies in the fact that his speeches are made up of pieces of argument; that his logic is irresistible; and that you are unwilling to lose a single link in the chain of reasoning which leads you, whether you will or not, from his premise to embrace necessarily his conclusions. The argument, too, is done up, not in a showy and sparkling dress, but in pure, simple, and massive English, uncorrupted by the foreignisms which characterize the turgidity and bombast that modern writers and speakers consider the perfection of style.

He adds the following paragraph in reference to the feeling in Kentucky:

"Our friends in Kentucky are sanguine of being able to carry that State over Bell and Everett. Those Douglas men in the State, who are sincerely Democrats, are beginning to see that there is not the slightest chance for their candidate, and that the only result of running an electoral ticket would be to give the State to the enemies of the Democratic party. Besides, there are but few men in the State who are in favor of Squatter Sovereignty, the Democratic and Opposition Conventions last year having both unanimously resolved that Congress had the power to protect slave property in the Territories. All seem to pride a little, too, in the gallant son of Kentucky, John C. Breckinridge, and will strive earnestly to carry his name for the Democratic candidates. It is the general belief here that the Democrats will carry every Southern State, and Gov. Stevens assures me that New York will go for the fusion ticket, thus securing the defeat of Abraham Lincoln.

THE NOMINATION OF DOUGLAS A JOKE.—It is hinted, says the Washington Constitution that the irrepressible wags of the Squatter Sovereignty party who offered the Vice-Presidency to Mr. YANCEY (in joke, as they say) also intended only a joke when they nominated DOUGLAS and FITZPATRICK at Baltimore. Mr. FITZPATRICK declined to stand it, as we all know, even in a jocular sense; but the vanity of DOUGLAS was such that he accepted the nomination, more to the dismay than to the amusement of the jokers!

It was first brazenly denied by the Squatters that Mr. YANCEY was offered the Vice-Presidency at all. Driven out of that position by indisputable proofs, they could only fall back on the plea that they were only joking when they did it. This is exquisite jocularity, but nobody laughs.

Many people have come to the conclusion that the whole Squatter party is nothing but a joke, though rather a melancholy one.

JUDGE TANEY AND GEN. CASS.—The Squatters, says the Courier, are claiming that Judge TANEY, of the Supreme Court, is for Douglas. It is an absurd falsehood. We denied it, when the report was first put in circulation, on the authority of the Philadelphia Pennsylvanian. And since the canard has been revived, the Pennsylvanian reiterates, upon what it says is "undoubted authority," its statement, that while, of course, Judge TANEY will not take any part in the canvass, he will vote for Breckinridge and Lane.

Of a piece with this, is the revival of a falsehood long since exploded, that Gen. Cass is for the little giant. Gen. Cass is warmly for Breckinridge and Lane, and repudiates with scorn the idea that he would violate the agreement he and Douglas and our Democratic leaders made that they would abide by the decision of the Court on the power of the Territorial Legislatures and the duty of the Federal Government in regard to the inhabitants of the Territories. That decision, he believes, has been made; and by its action in the Dred Scott case he will stand, with Buchanan, Breckinridge, and the National Democracy.

ANOTHER DOUGLAS ELECTOR FOR BRECKINRIDGE AND LANE.—We learn from the Nashville Union and American of yesterday, that Hon. W. C. B. Jones, of Tennessee, has withdrawn as an Elector on the Douglas ticket for the Second District, in that State, and will support Breckinridge and Lane for President and Vice President. Mr. Jones was one of the Tennessee delegation to the National Democratic Convention, and has been one of Douglas' most ardent supporters. He was one of the three delegates from his State who remained in the Front Street Theater Convention after the withdrawal of the remainder of the delegation. The work goes bravely on.

WHAT PARTY SOUTH HOLDS THE NORTH IN CHECK?—That is a question worthy of serious consideration. It is evident that the Breckinridge and Lane organization is the antagonist of the Northern anti-slavery party. It is so recognized by the latter. It is the present bulwark of the South. Our people should rally to its standard. Now is the day and now the hour. Come quick, plant yourselves, Southern men, upon the ramparts of the Constitutional Democracy. The work goes bravely on.

THE CHICAGO TIMES AND HERALD, JUDGE DOUGLAS' HOME ORGAN, SAYS THE ADMINISTRATION HAS ADVISED ITS ADHERENTS IN THE NORTHWEST TO VOTE FOR DOUGLAS AGAINST LINCOLN. Will not the friends of Douglas in the South, then, be forced to Breckinridge against Bell?

HON. J. W. REID, ELECTED TO CONGRESS FROM MISSOURI.—At the recent election, heretofore an active Douglas man, has taken his stand with the National Democracy, and will vote, as he is working, for Breckinridge and Lane.

Letter from Boyle.
Bellringer's Meeting—Big Guns expected—Great disappointment—Grand Fizzle—No Crittenden, no Combs, no Hanson, no Nothing—The Feeling—A Protectionist makes a Douglass Speech, &c.

Correspondence of the Louisville Courier, Boyle County, Ky., Oct. 23, 1860.

Editors Louisville Courier: For some days past, active preparations have been made for a grand "Bell-Union" demonstration, at the Fair Grounds, near Danville, in this county.

"Notice was freely given by the "faithful," far and near. That all-consistent and reliable sheet, the Kentucky Tribune, was filled with earnest entreaties to the brethren everywhere to rally on that occasion to hear the Hon. J. J. Crittenden, R. W. Hanson, Jno. M. Harlan, Leslie Combs, and others who would, it declared, certainly be present. Well, time rolled on—the appointed day—year hour, was upon us, and a company numbering perhaps three hundred men, women, and children, assembled; but no Crittenden, no Hanson, no Jno. M. Harlan, no Combs, was there. Disappointment and deep mortification was evinced plainly by every one composing this little "Spartan band" of devoted Union-savers. What can be the matter? was a question put and answered numberless times, on that never to be forgotten day. The ladies present (God bless them) had our tenderest sympathies. More than once they were heard to exclaim, "Did you ever witness such a failure?" "Oh, I do feel so bad!" "Now won't the Democrats have their own fun over this?" "It will do them so much good!" I repeat, that for them I felt deeply—but in the language of our old friend "Bill Owens," of Lincoln county, Kentucky, we had "little or no sympathy" whatever. But to the speaking. The few deluded ones present had come to hear speaking—and speaking they must hear. In the absence of the "big guns" above mentioned, the Hon. Joshua F. Bell—the ardent pro-slavery Joshua—PROTECTION JOSHUA—SLAVE CODE JOSHUA, of 1859, mounted the stand and delivered himself of what was pronounced by good judges, a speech that would have delighted the immost soul of the most intense Douglastie. "O what a fall was there, my countrymen!"—what a turning about, politically—how different his teaching now compared with his bold and manly advocacy of constitutional doctrines, so ably and with such apparent earnestness, proclaimed by him, "one short year ago!"

"When the devil is sick; the devil a saint would be; But when the devil is well, The devil a saint is he." The case being altered, sometimes alters the case. There was policy with Joshua then, and there is policy with Joshua now, and Joshua doubtless is satisfied that the ends justify the means. "A word to the wise," &c.

The next speaker on the stand was Hon. W. C. Anderson, for whom, as to particulars, the reader is respectfully referred to Hon. James S. Christian.

This unpleasant little meeting was concluded by a pleasant little speech, from a pleasant little man, familiarly known as little Jimmy Harlan. Taking the affair altogether, it was certainly the great farce—failure—fizzle—of the season. By the way—some of our citizens were not a little astonished when they saw, and heard it announced, that the meeting would be held at the Fair Grounds. They remembered that four years ago, the Democracy desired to hold a meeting there, and the privilege was denied them; but two years ago the Sabbath Schools wished to enjoy a picnic at the same place, and their request was refused; that the application of the Odd Fellows, for the use of the grounds last year, met with a like fate; and that the Democracy of Boyle declined holding a mass meeting this year for the want of a suitable place, &c. How is this? Do the grounds belong exclusively to the Union-savers? and are they to be used alone by those who are engaged in modern Union-saving? If such is the case, we have nothing more to say.

In conclusion, with the best of feelings for all concerned in the late unfortunate attempt at a political meeting, we would earnestly exhort the leaders—the speakers particularly—to a different course. You know you are wrong, and that the only effect of your course is to mislead your fellow men. This is no time for such foolishness—quit it, gentlemen, quit it. The people, the honest masses, do not intend to be humbugged into casting the vote of Kentucky against their own gallant and gifted Breckinridge, while contending, as he is, and has ever done, for our glorious Union and constitutional equality.

HONESTY.

[From the Springfield (Ill.) Democrat.]

Squatter Polygamy.

Many of the Douglas Democrats are, as we believe, sincere Christians, and cannot be made, when they know it, to give their influence in any way to the establishment of anti-christian and heathenish institutions or customs in any of the States—present or future—of the Union. And yet a moment's reflection will show them that every argument employed by Mr. Douglas, either in support or defense, of his peculiar doctrine of squatter sovereignty, or the rights of the people in the territories to make just such laws, and establish just such institutions as they may desire, without the possibility of Congress to interfere in any way, is an argument in support and defense of the peculiar institutions of Mormonism.

Utah territory possesses a population of 60,000, all of whom are polygamists, and if Mr. Douglas' squatter logic is worth anything at all, it not only establishes polygamy as one of the legal institutions of the United States, but it places it completely in the power of Brigham Young to fix that foulest excess—of heathenish prostitution, upon all the embryo States contiguous to his dominions. For, he can at any time that he shall see fit to do so, send from 5,000 to 10,000 of his saints—without calling upon emigrant aid societies for help—into the adjoining territories, and by a judicious use of their votes, give tone and complexion to the whole territorial legislation.

Again, some of the professed disclosures point to the existence in the Mormon ritual of human sacrifices as one of the sublime rites of the Mormon church. What, according to squatter logic, is there to prevent the open promulgation of this, as one of the tenets of the church, and one of the national customs of citizens of the United States—whether, in the form of infanticide, or widow-burning, or the annual slaughter of selected victims, as may suit the taste of these latter day saints?

It may, it is true, be objected, that that would be horrible, it would be legalizing murder. But, what of that? Have not the people of the territories the right to regulate their domestic institutions in their own way? And is not their religion a domestic institution? And are you a good squatter sovereign, and yet afraid to trust the people of the territories to establish just such forms of religion and religious worship as they please?

We repeat—if the dogma of squatter sovereignty is supported at all by truth, it goes to the extent of establishing Brigham the first, not only on the throne, as he blasphemously claims, of Jesus Christ, in Utah, but in so many of the new territories as he may see fit to take possession of.

The Harrodsburg Press thinks the Fifth District will do much better for Breckinridge and Lane than our friends in others parts of the State expect. It says:

Our information, which we know is reliable, from this, the Fifth District, is that Breckinridge and Lane are gaining strength every day. Washington county will do much better than was first hoped for—the same in Marion and Hardin counties. Our friends at a distance may rely upon it that the Fifth District will do better for Breckinridge and Lane than has been looked for.

Mother's need no longer worry their children half to death, forcing wormseed oil and similar disgusting drugs down their throats. Dr. John Bull's Vegetable Worm Destroyer is just the article they want. Put up in the form of candy, the children are delighted with it, and worms are destroyed as if by a stroke of lightning.
